Meeting the challenges of Agriculture and Forestry with Commissioner Bob Odom

There are now 85 confirmed equine cases of West Nile virus in Louisiana, Commissioner of Agriculture and Forestry Bob Odom said.

"The virus has developed rapidly in our horse population, especially in the Florida Parishes area," Odom added. "We're seeing very high numbers in Tangipahoa and St. Tammany, and some in Washington as well."

Other outbreaks of the virus have been found in Cameron and Calcasieu parishes in the southwest and Ascension Parish in the southeast. Department of Agriculture and Forestry animal health officials report isolated cases in East Feliciana, Iberia, Point Coupee, St. Bernard and Vermilion.

"So far we have no confirmed cases in north Louisiana," Odom pointed out. "It certainly doesn't mean the disease is not there and that horse owners can be lax in vaccinating. It simply means the symptoms haven't been strong enough for a horse owner to suspect illness and contact a veterinarian."

There is a West Nile virus vaccination available for horses through their local veterinarian. When the first cases of West Nile were identified last year, the vaccine was in short supply because of high demand.

This year, Odom said, there is plenty of the vaccine to go around.

"Horse owners should contact their veterinarian as soon as possible to get the vaccination," he said. "It's also very important to pay attention to the manufacturer's recommendations for proper dosage and frequency. Since West Nile is now established in Louisiana, our horses need more frequent vaccinations."

If a horse has never received the vaccine, it should be given a full dose followed in three to four weeks by another full dose.

"Once a horse has built up its immunity after these initial injections, an injection every six months is typical protocol in areas where the disease is endemic, or present," State Veterinarian Dr. Maxwell Lea said.

West Nile virus was first diagnosed in Louisiana horses last year when nine cases were confirmed in equine animals.

"There were probably more cases out there last year and I would suspect there are more this year but sometimes the disease goes undetected by horse owners and the animal eventually gets well," Odom said.

Symptoms of West Nile virus in horses are similar to those of Eastern Equine encephalitis and include lethargy, increase in temperature, head pressing and finally, the inability to stand or walk. Eastern Equine is another encephalitis causing virus that is spread by mosquitoes and affects horses in Louisiana. There is a vaccination for Eastern Equine encephalitis.

West Nile virus is fatal in about 30 percent of the horses that contract it, whereas Eastern Equine encephalitis has a mortality rate of 90 percent. The disease causes encephalitis, or swelling of the brain, in both horses and humans, but cannot be transmitted directly from horses or humans to other horses and humans. The virus is transmitted by mosquitoes in two ways, either from bird to bird or from bird to mammal.

The Department of Agriculture and Forestry is working with local veterinarians, horse owner groups and health officials to monitor the spread of the disease.

Commissioner Bob Odom presents a 40-year service award plaque to Dr. Blake W. Blakewood at the LDAF Service Awards in July. Blakewood has 40 years of state service and is a veterinarian for the department's Livestock Sanitary Board in Rapides Parish.

More firefighters head west to battle blazes

For the second time this summer, 20 Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry forest firefighters have joined forces out of state to fight wildfires, Commissioner of Agriculture and Forestry Bob Odom said today.

"We're still in a position now, based on our rainfall, that we can lend a hand to other states who need help fighting fires," Odom said. "The minute our situation changes, these guys will be back in Louisiana."

The firefighters traveled to California and Oregon over the weekend where they will fight the Gate, Tool Box and Silver fires.

Don Smith, district forester in Olla, is serving as crew boss for the Pawnee #63 crew fighting the Gate fire near Walker, Calif. His crew is "mopping up" part of the 9,900-acre fire in steep, rugged terrain.

"We have been notified that the Gate fire is pretty well contained and the crews could be reassigned in coming days," Odom added.

The other 19 LDAF firefighters make up a crew fighting the Tool Box and Silver fires near Paisley and Silver Lake, Ore. The complex of fires totals 59,000 acres and is only about 5 percent contained.

The firefighters are: Jeff Anders, Minden; Matt Cannon, Pollock; William Carpenter, squad boss, Clinton; Ray Carrier, Oberlin; Kirk Casanova, crew boss, Abita Springs; Darrell Eaves, DeRidder; Allen Gayle, Gibsland; Cullen Graham, Natchitoches; Andrew Parrish, Franklinton; David Perkins, DeRidder; Glen Poole, Winnfield; David Redmond, Greensburg; Ed Robichaux, Alexandria; Jason Rush, DeVillie; Shawn Sanders, Franklinton; Michael Smith, Greensburg; Robert Smith, Many; Mike Thomas, crew boss, Sloughter; and Joseph Willie, Folsom.

"The news we've heard from this crew is that they're working with a crew from Mississippi and are trying to gain better control of the fire," Odom said. "They're working 14 to 18 hours a day to protect the land and people out there, and we should all be proud of how they are representing our state."

The crew and Smith will fight fires for 14 days and then return to Louisiana.

The firefighters qualified for this type of assignment by taking an annual "pack" test, which requires them to carry a 45-pound pack three miles in 45 minutes, Odom said.

Louisiana has an average rainfall of 2.84 inches so far in July at forestry district recording stations. There have been 24 fires to date this month burning 253 acres.

Rice and soybean field day held

Louisiana rice producers have experienced record yields the past couple of years, but weather has made this year’s crop “fair-to-good.”

During the Northeast Louisiana Rice and Soybean Field Day held Wednesday (July 24) at Woodsland Plantation near Monroe, Dr. Johnny Saichuk, a rice specialist with the LSU AgCenter, said this summer’s temperatures and rain may end up being detrimental for 2002 rice crop.

“We’re starting to see signs of rice blast show up after some of the recent rains,” Saichuk said. “This is a disease that attacks the leaves and the stalk of the plant. There’s not much of a problem if it attacks just the leaves, but if it moves to the stalk, it can really affect yields.”

The symptoms of blast include leaf lesions that are spindle-shaped and elongated, with brown borders and grayish centers. The disease is spread by airborne spores.

To control the disease at leaf stages, the LSU AgCenter recommends maintaining proper flood levels in the fields. In addition, producers should plant varieties that are resistant to prevalent races of the fungus and avoid excessive rates of nitrogen, Saichuk said. The use of fungicides also will help in the management of blast, he said.

Sheath blight is another disease Saichuk warned producers about. Symptoms of this disease include large spots with cream-colored centers and broad, dark reddish-brown borders that appear on the sheath, usually beginning near the water line. Alternating wavelike tan and brown bands can extend up the sheath and may include the flag leaf. The wavelike band pattern my extend out on part or all of the leaf surface.

Thick stands and excessive nitrogen applications tend to contribute to disease development, he said. But producers can use fungicides to kill the disease, the LSU AgCenter specialist added.

In addition to controlling diseases, producers should also keep insect management in mind. Boris Castro of the LSU AgCenter’s entomology department in Baton Rouge, said the best times to scout for insects in rice crops are early morning and late evening.

“This is because more of the insects are out during these times,” Castro said. “These are also good times to spray because more of the insects are out and you’re more likely to get a ‘quick kill’ where you wouldn’t if you spray at other times.”

Dr. Steve Linscombe, regional director for the LSU AgCenter’s Southwest Region and a former rice breeder, gave an update on the status of the Clearfield rice lines.

These lines were developed from herbicide-resistant rice discovered by Dr. Tim Croughan at the LSU AgCenter’s Rice Research Station in Crowley. They are revolutionary because of their tolerance to imidazolinone herbicides, which makes it possible to control the nuisance weed “red rice” without harming the rice crop.

“The CL161 is currently in the approval process,” Linscombe said. “We hope it will be available by 2003. We believe this is the Clearfield line to the future.”

Linscombe said the CL161 has a higher level of resistance to the Newpath herbicide that is used in Clearfield systems. The existing Clearfield lines can suffer from some degree of injury due to the herbicide, he said.

Another line that is being looked at for potential release is LA2174, according to Linscombe, who said this semi-dwarf line has a good yield potential and a good grain quality, as well as good milling characteristics.

Other reports during the field day included information from Dr. Bill Williams, a researcher at the LSU AgCenter’s Northeast Research Station in St. Joseph, about controlling fallow ground alligator weed. Dr. Pat Bollich of the LSU AgCenter’s Rice Research Station in Crowley also talked about rice fertilization and varieties, and Dr. David Lanclos of the LSU AgCenter’s Dean Lee Research Station in Alexandria talked about Group IV soybean varieties.

Tree seedling applications now being accepted

The Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry will begin taking landowner tree seedling applications Aug. 1, Commissioner Bob Odom said.

Applications can be obtained at the department’s website, www.ldaf.state.la.us at “seedling sales,” or from any district forestry office or by calling the department’s state headquarters at 225 925-4515.

“This is a seedling sale aimed at small to large landowners and should not be confused with our urban seedling sales where we sell small packets of six to 20 seedlings,” Odom said.

“In this sale we will be selling hardwood trees in minimum lots of 50 as well as in lots of 100 seedlings, 500 seedlings and 1,000 seedlings or more. Pine seedlings are sold in minimum lots of 500 and more.

“We also have an “arboretum packet” of 16 to 25 species of 50 assorted and labeled seedlings for $30 and a “wildlife packet” of 25 assorted and labeled seedlings suitable for wildlife habitat improvement for $20.

More specific quantity and price information can be found on the purchase application available on the website. Seedlings will be available from mid November through December.

Lagniappe Cookery... Poultry Recipes

Chicken is one of America's most popular foods and tops beef and pork in consumption per capita. Wholesome tasty chicken is economical, easy to prepare, and a great enjoyment to serve. White-meat chicken is one of the lowest-fat protein sources, and leg meat, while a bit higher in fat, provides a rich flavor to any meal.

- Chicken Roll-Ups

  - *4 chicken breasts
  - Bread crumbs
  - 2 cups mushrooms
  - *1 egg
  - 1 can of cream mushroom soup
  - 1 can of cream of chicken soup
  - Vegetable oil
  - Salt
  - Pepper
  - 1 cup shredded cheese
  - Toothpicks
  - 1 package of Egg noodles

Flatten chicken breasts. Dip in mixed egg and cover with bread crumbs. Fry in vegetable oil just until slightly brown.

Slice mushrooms and fry. Add mushrooms and cheese to center of cooked breasts and roll up. Keep in place with toothpicks.

Add them to baking pan. In separate bowl, mix soups together and then pour over chicken. Bake for 20 to 30 minutes. Salt and pepper to taste. Serve over bed of egg noodles.
- Stuffed Chicken Breasts

  - 10 oz. Swiss cheese, diced
  - *2 eggs, lightly beaten
  - 3 tablespoons seasoned bread crumbs
